

Resisting Repression

Maintaining our right to protest

In June 2003, during the G8 meeting in Evian, Martin Shaw barely escaped death when the Swiss police cut the rope he was hanging from in an attempt to blockade delegates attending the summit.

Martin is touring the UK (spring 2004) with a video of the incident and discussing the wave of both legal and physical repression that has been sweeping across the world in recent years.

From Gothenburg, to Genoa, to Thessaloniki, to last night in your neighbourhood, this was just one more incident of repression and police impunity.

What should we be doing about it - as individuals, as affinity groups, as communities, as networks?

What are 'communities of resistance,' and what are the most practical ways that we can support each other when such repression happens amongst us?
