

Support striking journalists fighting for jobs!

Members of the National Union of Journalists at Sheffield Newspapers are staging strike action to oppose the threat of compulsory redundancies. Members voted for action because they are angry at the threat to jobs and at the attack on quality journalism that these cuts represent.

Owners Johnston Press have run up massive debts buying up titles in Britain and Ireland and now expect workers to pay the cost as the company share price plummets. One NUJ official dubbed them the “newspaper equivalent of HBOS.”
