Killing is big business. Barclays is the largest global investor in the arms trade, with £billions invested. Many of these arms companies supply Israel with weapons. Barclays has shares in Israeli company Elbit, whose UK factory UAV Engines makes parts for armed drones that have been used to kill children in Gaza. Barclays also invests in other Israeli companies, including those operating in illegally occupied settlements.

Barclays profits from their deaths

- Barclays is the largest investor in the global Arms Trade - making a killing from killing.
- Barclays and arms companies profit from arms sales to Israel and from Israel's attacks on Gaza.
- Barclays is the only high street bank with significant direct investments in Israeli companies.
- Israel's occupation of Palestine is illegal. Palestinian land and other resources such as water are commandeered for illegal Israeli settlements.
- Israel is in breach of scores of UN Security Council resolutions and is widely condemned for its murderous attacks on civilians in Palestine.
- In the month from 7 July 2014, Israel killed nearly 1,900 people in Gaza, mostly civilians and including over 400 children. Around 10,000 citizens have been injured and nearly half a million displaced.
- Extensive research by the Glasgow University Media Group proves that UK mainstream media reporting of the conflict is heavily biased in favour of Israel.

Three things you can do

- (1) Cut up your Barclays bank cards & move your accounts.
- (2) Tell Barclays that profiting from warfare is unacceptable and you won't support it.
- (3) Call on Barclays to stop investing in Israeli companies and the arms trade.
